Call for Papers - Special Issue

Dear Professor Khodir MADANI (Specialty/Guest Editor-NAJFNR),

The NAJFNR is currently running a special issue entitled "Shaping the future of Food Chemistry in MENA countries" dedicated for the scope you are heading in Volume 03, Special Issue, 2019.

We think, you and your team (Food chemistry editorial members) could make an excellent contribution, based on your expertise and experience in the field, to enrich this special issue.

Our aim is to publish rigorous empirical original research, reviews, meta-analysis, research methodologies or theoretical works. We seek significant contributions that will appeal to an international audience of researchers, managers, educators, and policy makers. Potential topics include (but are not limited to) conceptual and practical issues shaping the future of food chemistry in MENA countries and relevant to food processing and industry. As it is well established that the chemical processes occurring inside foods, determine their nutritional value, taste, texture and freshness.

The journal welcomes manuscripts of high scientific quality that are relevant to the scope Food Chemistry. The journal does not charge any author submission fees. Upon submission to NAJFNR, manuscripts may not be submitted to another journal while under review, nor should they have been previously published. All manuscripts are reviewed by a minimum of two (02) referees with expertise in research relevant to the manuscript topic. Results of the review and consideration for decision (acceptance, suggestions for revision, or fully justified rejection) by the editorial board, will be communicated rapidly to authors.

HOW TO SUBMIT

The North African Journal of Food and Nutrition Research receives all manuscript submissions electronically via the website. Seeking Submission date August 20th, 2019. Please visit the webpage <https://www.najfnr.org/submission> to download necessary files.
